

We Can Help...

Is your child not meeting their developmental milestones?

Are you looking for tips to handle problem behavior?

Does your child show no interest in participating in activities with family and peers?

Does your child show signs of anxiety when moving between activities?

Who We Are...

The Resource Center for Autism and Developmental Delays (RCADD) was established to share resources, referral information, and training for families and educators of children with developmental disabilities. RCADD's professional staff provides resources and guidance to discover children's strengths, and help construct a support team to encourage their growth.

What We Provide...

Resources:
RCADD hosts a lending library filled with free materials to borrow. The lending library maintains

- Books
- Software
- Games
- Home Teaching Kits
- Visual Supports

a categorical selection of both functional and educational resources relating to Autism Spectrum Disorders (ASDs) and various other developmental delays. These items provide community members and professionals with access to current, innovative, supportive services and materials.

Referrals:

Can't find the resources or training you need at RCADD? We can provide referral information and basic case management necessary to link families and providers to relevant services, resources and trainings.

Training:

The Resource Center for Autism & Developmental Delays provides training opportunities specific to the needs of those teaching, serving, or caring for a child with an Autism Spectrum Disorder or other developmental delays. Trainings are designed in light of evidence-based treatments and interventions as well as current promising practices. By participating in interactive activities, participants increase their knowledge and develop a real-life understanding of the characteristics of Autism and other developmental delays.

The Center's professional staff will customize training to meet the specific needs of your organization. Our mission is to provide parents and providers with high quality, practical resources and consultations.

Our Partners...

The Center opened in 2010 in partnership with the Chicago Department of Family & Support Services, the University of Illinois at Chicago Center for Literacy, and The Autism Program of Illinois. All of these organizations contribute their expertise to provide quality materials and services.
