Chicago Commons, a Reggio-Inspired Early Childhood program, is continually working on expanding children’s experiences with nature and natural elements. This year’s learning tour will illustrate Commons’ journey of fortifying children’s right to explore and experience, nature and natural materials. Some of the elements that will be discussed include:

- Accessing nature in our urban context
- Nature as a catalyst for building relationships between children, natural materials, parents and the community
- Opportunities with limited access to nature
- Seeing obstacles and working in spite of them

The Outdoor Classroom is a year-long pilot program developed by Chicago Commons Child Development Program. This project focuses on the collaborative and innovative aspects of emergent curriculum in order to forge a new path in making connections with nature.

In the fall of 2010, Chicago Commons began a collaborative effort with local landscape architects from Hitchcock Design Group to renovate the outdoor play area at the Paulo Freire Family Center with an emphasis on nature-based play.
